Hearing Aid Styles

The right one for you is dependent on your individual hearing loss, as well as the physical characteristics of your ear and ear canal.

FULL SHELL - In the ear (ITE) hearing aid. Fills the entire bowl of the ear. This is the most versatile instrument style.

HALF SHELL - Similar to the full shell hearing aid, but about half the size.

CANAL AID - In the canal (ITC) hearing aid. Fits into the opening of the ear canal making it less visible, yet still provides the size needed for longer battery life.

MINI CANAL - This instrument is smaller than the traditional canal aid, therefore is designed for less severe hearing loss.

CIC- Completely In Canal Hearing Aid. Hides entirely within the ear canal. This instrument style is not appropriate for everyone and requires at least two visits.

OPEN FIT- Is an open fit which uses a tiny receiver or thin tube in your ear instead of an earmold. Nearly invisible and the most natural sound ever!

BTE- Behind The Ear Aid. Fits behind the ear and is attached to a custom ear mold. This type of aid is useful for more severe hearing loss and allows a more powerful battery to be used.
